

January 21, 2009
FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Shoeboxed and ScanDigital Partner to Promote Digital Conversion Services

Services digitize and organize old photos, home movies, receipts, and business cards

Los Angeles, CA (January 15, 2009) – Shoeboxed, a company specializing in converting receipts and business cards to digital format and categorizing them, announces a partnership with ScanDigital, the leading photo and video conversion service, to allow the cross promotion of their services. Customers on both ends have the same desire to go digital, so introducing one another's service to their established audience makes perfect sense.

“Both Shoeboxed and ScanDigital are helping people digitally archive their important personal documents and get organized, so there is a real synergy here,” said Taylor Mingos, Shoeboxed's CEO. “I think ScanDigital users are going to love Shoeboxed, and vice versa.”

“Our partnership with Shoeboxed is particularly timely since so many people set a New Year's resolution to become more organized and is in line with our core mission of helping people utilize digital technologies to not only become more organized, but also make otherwise daunting tasks easy,” says Anderson Schoenrock, President of ScanDigital.

About ScanDigital

ScanDigital is a web-based company that provides an innovative service and process for the conversion of old photos, slides, negatives, videos and reel-to-reel film into digital format. Orders are placed online at www.scandigital.com and the website automatically generates a UPS shipping label for secure shipping to their Los Angeles headquarters. Photos are scanned and then a light photo restoration is performed including: individual cropping orientation, color correction, red-eye removal and the removal of dust and minor scratches. The digitized images are returned on CD or DVD along with the originals, usually within a week after they are received at ScanDigital. ScanDigital's Video and Film Conversion services allow users to view their old videos and reel-to-reel film in digital format. This includes 8mm, Super 8, 16mm, VHS, VHS-C, BetaMax, Hi8, MiniDV, and Digital 8 materials. All materials are processed in the U.S. to ensure that handling is fast and secure, quality remains high, and your memorabilia are never lost in transit. For more information, visit www.scandigital.com.

About Shoeboxed

Shoeboxed (<http://www.shoeboxed.com>), a leading receipt organization service, scans and organizes its users' receipts and business cards to make them more manageable for taxes, reimbursements, budgeting and bookkeeping. When users mail receipts to Shoeboxed in the company's prepaid envelopes, they are scanned and entered into their accounts online with the store name, date, total, payment type and expense category. Users can also send in email receipts or upload receipts themselves for a complete receipt archive. Business cards are scanned and uploaded with the data from the front and back of each card. Mail-In plans start at $9.95 per month, but use of the Shoeboxed website is free and includes comparable features to expensive offline software solutions in the market.

Other features of Shoeboxed:

- No scanners or software upgrades required
- Export receipts to Quicken, Excel, CSV, PDF expense report
- Import business card contacts to Outlook, Salesforce, LinkedIn, and other digital address book solutions
- Free catch-up scanning for receipt and business card backlogs

ScanDigital Press Contact:

Pamela Weiss, Director of PR / Marketing, 310.341.4850, weiss@scandigital.com

Shoeboxed Press Contact:

Dan Englander, VP of Communications, 919.943.5322, dan@team.shoeboxed.com